

FRIDAY, JULY 11, 2014

Bank hosts finance course

STREAMWOD -More than 350 Streamwood High School students have dedicated more than 2,240 hours this year to the First Eagle Bank Financial Scholars Program. First Eagle Bank has sponsored student access to EverFi-Financial Literacy, a web based resource focused on teaching the basics of personal finance. Using the latest in new media technology, First Eagle Bank has brought complex financial concepts to life for students at Streamwood High School. The 10-unit course offers approximately seven hours of programming covering a variety of relevant financial topics including credit scores, insurance, student loans, taxes, stocks, 401k's and other critical concepts that map to state and national financial literacy standards. Students who successfully complete the course earn their EverFi Certification in Financial Literacy.